

UNLOCKING A CHILD'S MIND

UC DAVIS

Who are we?

We conduct studies on child development at the UC Davis Center for Mind and Brain, under the direction of faculty members at UC Davis. Our research is funded by the National Institutes of Health, National Science Foundation, and private foundations.

What do we do?

We want to understand how infants, children, and adolescents view, learn, and think about the world around them. Our labs explore topics like memory, reasoning about numbers, emotional reactions, and language development.

What will your child do?

Volunteers will come in for one or more sessions to our lab. We may observe your child interacting with new objects, games, and other researchers. We may also record your child's eye gaze as they look at pictures. Regardless of the study, you will be with your child or nearby for the entire session.

How to participate

If you are interested in participating, please contact us by phone, email or, by filling out the bottom portion of this form (see other side) and sending it back to us using the enclosed envelope. You may also scan the QR code to fill out our volunteer survey.

Where are we located?

Our address is 202 Cousteau Pl. Davis, 95616.

We are conveniently located in East Davis close to the I-80 with lots of free parking. We also provide free, friendly childcare for any other children you bring to our labs.

Phone: (530) 754-4516

With your participation, our researchers have made fascinating discoveries:

- Living with a dog or cat at home changes how babies investigate pictures of animals!
- Children under the age of 4 are drawn to look at emotional faces (e.g., happy or sad) more than non-emotional faces!
- We understand how children's reactions to stress influences their developing immune systems and their social interactions!
